Sexuality education and an open attitude towards sexuality do not make it easier for paedophiles to abuse children. The opposite is the case: when children learn about equality and respect in relationships, they are in a better position to recognize abusive persons and situations. In the absence of this, children and young people can look. This is what is called age-appropriateness. A child aged four to six years learns for example about topics such as friendships, emotions and different parts of the body. It is the obligation of States parties to ensure that all adolescent girls and boys, both in and out of school, are provided with, and not denied, accurate and appropriate information on how to protect their health and development and practise healthy behaviours. The study concluded on the note that if girl-child education is fostered, she will be self-reliant, adequately socialize and well empowered to contribute meaningfully to her community as well as having the coping skills to problems solving to an appreciable extent. The study, therefore, recommends that education should be made accessible to the girl-child at all levels and awareness programs should be floated and fostered to redeem the image of the girl-child to make the world a better place for her to live in. The study concluded on the note that if girl-child education is fostered, she will be self-reliant, adequately socialize and well empowered to contribute meaningfully to her community as well as having the coping skills to problems solving to an appreciable extent.
