Occupation- Making Easter bonnet. Activity Task Actions Voluntary movements & mental processes. Culture is the collective programming of the human mind that distinguishes the members of one human group from those another. Culture in this sense is a system of collectively held values. Culture is the deeper level of basic assumptions and beliefs that are shared by members of an Organization, that operate unconsciously and define in a basic fashion an organisation's view of its self an its environment. Changes in occupational behaviour over time are as a result of the development of occupational competence! Competency is developed along a continuum from novice to mastery! trial & error and practice are needed for developing competence! The Occupational Therapy Handbook reflects modern day occupational therapy practice and education. The editors have created a current user-friendly text book specifically in relation to Practice Education, particularly in light of the developing role of occupational therapy in current practice. Many developments in practice education have re-focused the value that the profession places on occupation, particularly in role emerging placements and expanding areas of practice. These developments are captured in this text. Other texts that have been produced have predominantly had a multi-professi just the book I needed for program development class this semester of ot school - shipped in time before classes started.
