The Travels of Pedro Teixeira: With His "Kings of Harmuz" and Extracts from His "Kings of Persia", - Pedro Teixeira - 1902 - Hakluyt Society, 1902

The history of the kings of Hormuz is closely related to the history of Iranian maritime trade. For five hundred years, from the twelfth to the seventeenth century, the island of Hormuz was a vital hub for trade with the East and the West. Pedro Teixeira, a Portuguese traveller, provides valuable insights into this period in his work, "The Travels of Pedro Teixeira: With His Kings of Hormuz, and Extracts from His Kings of Persia".

Teixeira's account is based on his experiences and observations during his travels, which were likely influenced by his medical background. His work, published in 1902, is a reproduction of an important historical work, offering a glimpse into the political and cultural landscape of the Middle East during the early modern period.

In his Kings of Persia (bk. 1, chap. Xxv) Teixeira describes at some length the practices of physicians in different countries of the East, mostly from his own experience. He notes that it is probable that Teixeira accompanied the various expeditions mentioned below in a medical capacity. This book is a reproduction of an important historical work.
